Both Adobe Illustrator CC and Photoshop CC have been updated for the first time in several years. The core product for vector graphics is the most important addition, with new features such as Live Stroke, Vector Masking, Mask Paths, and the good-old Warp Modes. Adobe expects Photoshop CC to sell 2.2 million licenses at $699 each this year, which would be a 50 percent increase over 2016. We can expect the upgrade edition to demand a good chunk of its sales, especially with free legacy support, which drops a year later but is reasonable for the average Photoshop user. And while the upgrade edition of Photoshop CC is priced higher, it's also priced at the low end of the market for upgrades (rather than new purchases). Adobe's production solution (the software package for printing, publishing, and printing workflows) was upgraded from CS7 to CS15, and the first ever nonsilent version of ACR. Results from the beta, which we did on a 2017 iMac Pro are very strong, with Photoshop and Photoshop Touch delivering exceptional color accuracy and stability. The subscription-based Photo Studio was also updated with a new UI and performance improvements. With the release of Photoshop CC, Adobe is continuing its push to become a full-service provider of digital solutions to artists and designers, as reflected in the addition of the Creative Cloud apps team, new product releases, and now brought to users with the release of Share for Review. And after the apparent discontinuation of Creative Cloud for Android in the summer, newer versions of Adobe Lightroom and Adobe Workflow have been installed automatically, updating those software packages to the latest version.

Afloat Digital is a full-service starter agency in Tacoma, WA. We serve the greater Tacoma area, including Des Moines, Olympia, Longview, Lacey, Centralia, King County, and Thurston County. We operate under the motto "Mediocre isn't mediocre. Because we're a full-service agency, we specialize in our collection of sectors. We work in Corporate, Real Estate, Industrial, Financial, Non-Profit, Interiors, Commercial, and more. Most of our work comes from word-of-mouth referrals, so we work to make our clients happy and to earn their business over the long term.

As a "starter agency", we don't commit to any client. We take most of our work from looking through projects in online portfolios. And we are very careful with our clients' projects because we don't want to have to change the site's look, feel, or branding every few months. We want to make the client happy with the look and feel of their site for as long as they need. This way, if the client doesn't dig the look now, we can provide the same look/feel without sending them down a redesign path.
