SINGAPORE - The Tax (Amendment) Bill 2016, seeking to shift the billing of Goods and Services Tax from the end consumer to the manufacturer, is expected to be finalised by the end of the year as the government seeks to make it easier for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to compete internationally. This was announced in a parliamentary standing committee hearing on ways to encourage SMEs, as reported by The Straits Times on Tuesday (Oct 3). Checks are being carried out to ensure the bill can be passed "in 2016 and become effective in 2017", said Mr Ng Eng Hen, the Minister for Finance, in response to queries from Parliamentary Secretary for Manpower Tan Chuan-Jin. Industry minister Teo Chee Hean added that the government is also reviewing the Act to determine if there is any requirement for the harmonisation of Goods and Services Tax, Mr Ng added. He said the Government intends to make "as many (of the) changes as possible" in a "calibrated way, that will minimise any disruption to businesses."
