A man in America, a man in England and a man in Austria have all experienced a reduction in the length of their penis due to the pressure of using mobile phones, and the NHS has recommended men seek help from a doctor. Switzerland's health minister, Alain Berset has called on Switzerland's government to do more to regulate how much time people spend on the go via their mobile phones. Now those who have purchased or sold tickets for the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival will be able to put those tickets to good use by re-marketing them through Spotify on any device. This feature will allow festivalgoers to use their ticket purchases to reach their audience and potential collaborators across Spotify on whatever device they're most likely to use. "We've really built this experience to empower festivalgoers to enjoy Coachella," said Jean-Christophe Baillie, senior vice president, music at Spotify. "Our fans and artist's fans can easily access their Spotify content while at the festival and discover new artists and songs that they wouldn't otherwise see. We can't wait to watch the festival season go down in a blaze of Coachella-inspired music, art and campfire stories." To set this up, you'll first need to have purchased or sold a ticket for Coachella. (If you bought a ticket but never sold it, Spotify can't share the ticket with you — so be sure to get in touch if that's the case!) Ticket purchasers will then be able to visit their ticket on the Spotify mobile app — whether they use an Android device, iOS device or web browser — and click on "My Coachella" to access their ticket. This will allow them to view their stats and purchase content for the event in the app, including custom playlists and radio, plus set their location to "at the festival".
