- The re-entry into the workplace of detainees held at the US-run Camp Delta prison in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, is due to start this week after five years of negotiations with the U.S. authorities. The inmates began a temporary second job at a camp supermarket dubbed “Camp America” on Monday and will go back to making cigarettes on Wednesday for four hours a day. “It’s not a fair comparison but I would say that in the U.S. there are many maximum security prisons that are not used for less than 10
