Six milligrams of sodium, 30 grams of carbohydrates, and 1 grams of sugar per day is the recommended amount for adults, according to the US National Institutes of Health. If you reach for a bag of chips and dip, reach for the Greek yogurt instead. Yogurt has 2 to 6 times more calcium than cheese and 3 to 5 times more iron than milk. Load up on nuts, fruits, and vegetables, which are rich in fiber, to keep you feeling full for longer. If you're hungry throughout the day, eat small, frequent meals. Bigger meals tend to trigger eating on the “bite” or “grazing” nerve, and your brain gets the signal that you’re still hungry. So eat six times a day instead of three, and four smaller meals instead of two larger ones. If you’re worried about not eating enough, be a little cavalier about your caloric needs. You can eat 5 percent more calories and still lose weight, says Delphine Vigan. And a calorie is just a number. It doesn't matter how you get it, only that you get it. 'No' Means 'No': California Bar Sets New Standard For Accepting Social Media Evidence from the it's-better-than-no-law dept Court systems across the US are embracing social media evidence -- as long as it's handled properly. California is no exception -- with the latest ruling from the State Supreme Court providing a new standard for social media evidence. Here's the background of the case, reported by Brian Calvert for the Sacramento Business Journal. In 2007, Stephanie Ann Williams posted a message on her Facebook page that caused what police later determined to be a disturbance in a McDonald's parking lot in Sacramento, e79caf774b
