Music videos [edit]Q: How to resolve NSMutableDictionary exception when object contains NSArray? I'm getting the following NSMutableDictionary exception when setting a value for an object containing an NSArray: Terminating app due to uncaught exception

'NSInvalidArgumentException', reason:

'-[__NSCFDictionary setObject:forKey:]':

unrecognized selector sent to instance 0x86e3e60

Here is the exact code: //dictionary object declaration NSMutableDictionary *savedData; //getting the array

```
from the dictionary NSArray *savedPages = (NSArray *)[savedData valueForKey:@"Pages"];
//saving the array to user defaults NSUserDefaults
*defaults = [NSUserDefaults standardUserDefaults]; [defaults setObject:savedPages forKey:@"savedPags"]; In the debugger, both savedData and savedPages are of type NSMutableDictionary but savedPages is of type NSArray. Also, an unrelated error I'm seeing is that NSRange *range = [_pageText.text rangeOfString:@""]; NSInteger pageNumber = [_pageText.text integerValue] - range.location; is being cast to an NSInteger but all the examples I've seen use NSUInteger for the type. I don't know if this is the cause of my problem. A: I just resolved this problem, I was not initializing the "Pages" key. It should have been written: //dictionary object declaration NSMutableDictionary *savedData; //getting the array from the dictionary NSArray *savedPages = [[savedData objectForKey:@"Pages"] mutableCopy]; I know there's some sort of state of emergency because it's getting really cold here but I'm not sure if it's a Blizzard or just weather. My WoW guild got a Call to Arms and is sending us out to Grommash Hellscream to defend the city against The Black Temple and their army. We're getting a special pass to the mountains which will get us in the city but we need to get there first. I can't seem to find any info on whether or not it is an actual
