I'm using the rabbitmq-server. Could I use this server for different projects (the same host + port and the same security method), with the same password, on the same server? Is there some kind of "virtual server" for RabbitMQ, some kind of "container" that I can use it, for different projects, on the same server? A: You could have a different user for each instance on your server. The user will have full access (manage, modify, delete etc) over all instances. And you can configure your instances to be specific permissions (manage, modify, delete etc) for each user.
