Single settings available No hotkey support Simple but effective tool for changing monitor settings on any computer with Windows Operating System. Detects monitor features and windows and tries to set the best monitor option. It's easy, fast, and works with most monitors! PowerSwitchMonitor is designed to switch your monitor on / off with a single click. Not all the monitor drivers support power management, but PowerSwitchMonitor may help out in case of switching the monitor off. How does it work? PowerSwitchMonitor is a Windows component, which monitors the state of certain functionality of your monitors. For instance, it will automatically turn your monitor on once Windows is booted, and turn it off if Windows is closed. It lets you manipulate monitor settings with a few simple clicks. The secret lies in the integration with the Windows OS. It's a small window that shows whether the state of certain features (such as Power Management) of your monitors is enabled or disabled. Features: PowerSwitchMonitor monitors many different features: Windows Start, Shutdown, Sleep, Hibernate, Standby, and Wakeup settings. It will automatically switch your monitor on / off once the computer is rebooted, and use your monitor settings to adjust brightness. PowerSwitchMonitor comes with several pre-made profiles you can use to switch your monitor on / off automatically: SwitchMonitorPlus is a small extension for Win7 or Win8 to quickly display a little notification when you need to switch off your monitor. A status window shows what is to be done and when. The notification can be dismissed with a single click. My todo list is an application that brings up a standalone window which acts like an application tray of sorts to allow you to keep your todo lists at the edge of your vision as you work, but doesn't take up any of the side of the screen. I added a unique plugin system to allow for todo lists to be auto-saved and to sync with various online services. PowerOffMonitor is a Windows program which monitors the state of the power button and upon being clicked, logs whether or not your computer was turned off. A small program window comes up which shows the status of your power button and supports a few simple actions: Switch your computer on, Switch your computer off, Switch your computer off once

Tuesday, May 28, 2009 Too soon? Do you ever wonder if it's too soon to have a baby? Is it ok to have had one by the age of 32? You know, I was going to write about the bump, but when I was writing my sister said it's been three years since she had her baby and she's very happy with her life and her baby. You know how you know? It took her three years to write that down. She's a very private person, obviously. I know that it can feel too soon and that's no fun. I like to do an imaginary pageant for the child, asking them: "If you were born today, who would you be?" and I'm always amazed how the answer is always "You". Every person I know has asked the question. They never dreamt I'd be getting old enough to have a child, let alone having one at the age of 32. If I went through the pageant, I'd be like Cleopatra or an actress who had done lots of movies. I don't know if I'd make a good mother. I read a book called "Love hurts" and I think the question "what do I really want?" is very important. Maybe that's the question I should ask myself. I'm planning on having a baby at the age of 35. Although I have no idea what that will feel like. Will it feel like I just finished college? Will it feel like I just started my career? Will it feel like I'm giving up my career to have one? Why do I want one so much? (it's a funny thing - I mean you're not supposed to be making a major life decision
