I have a large amount of data stored in my database that I would like to display to a user on a webpage. The data is NOT a web page, its a list of things. I want to have a "Next" "Previous" button on the side of the data. The thing is, I would like to have the data displayed in a simple list, but also have the ability to have multiple lists on a page. So, my first thought was to do something like this: list1 * data list list2 * data list But I would like to be able to have all of the lists on one page, as well as be able to have a "Next" button on each list. Is this possible? Perhaps, I could just do it by sticking all of the data on one list, and then have next and previous buttons on the side, but that seems like a bad idea. Any thoughts? A: Yes it's possible. Check out the following website. It shows how to use jquery to add the next/previous buttons to all your list items. NFL Draft Value Chart NFL Draft Value Chart Updated November 2016. By Aaron Schatz The NFL Draft is the single most important event in the entire year. At that point in the calendar, you have a good chance of acquiring a superstar. The draft is, of course, an annual event. The traditional order of the five rounds is based on when the teams get their new players, and the rules for compensating picks have evolved over the years. The official draft order is fixed
