Vita Portable PS Vita TV SHOCKER - Vita - PlayStation 3 Portable PS4 For Windows 8.1 Android. The American stock market has been relatively subdued in April, as the results of the latest round of US regulatory volatility continue to weigh on investor sentiment. These results, combined with disappointing US economic data, led to a decidedly subdued start to 2019.

Although US retail sales data on Thursday were unexpectedly better than expected, US economic data have been tracking near or at multi-year lows, and the US Federal Reserve has raised interest rates three times this year, meaning that a rate hike on May 3 is not out of the question.

Read more: The showdown that stopped the market The two biggest economic indicators have recently come in at disappointing multi-year lows: Industrial production and retail sales.

According to Wall Street Journal, April 2019's first quarter gross domestic product has come in at the lowest growth in three years. US market uncertainly: Weighing Trump tariffs, recent Fed moves There is a mounting sense of uncertainty in the US stock market, with Trump's trade war hanging over investors' heads as the latest round of tariffs kicked in. The trade war has already resulted in rising prices for some US goods and Trump has threatened higher tariffs on additional imports if the US and its trading partners don't meet his demands for more favorable trade terms. Read more: The trade war that rocked Wall Street US financial markets, which play a big role in determining how the global economy can function, have largely been feeling the pain of the trade war — by way of a lower dollar, rising interest rates, and a stock market that has underperformed. Read more: The trade war that rocked the world According to a poll conducted by the Wall Street Journal, two out of three adults expect a trade war to result in higher prices for almost everything they buy. Read more: Trump's trade war: How it's affected Wall Street Meanwhile, the White House had been scheduled to hold another round of trade talks with China in Beijing in the next couple of weeks. But Chinese president Xi Jinping cancelled the talks. Read more: Xi Jinping threatens to 'fight' China's trade war The question now is whether a trade deal between the US and China can be reached. Read
