The working group has to address the following concerns: NYPD detectives did an unexpected favor for a Harvard Law professor whose daughter was killed, when they confirmed that the late judge's killer was a convicted terrorist who had been sentenced to nine years in prison. On June 17, 1996, John H. Weber was found dead near his Essex, Connecticut home. Weber had been a judge in the state's Superior Court for 20 years, and had been made the subject of an assassination investigation after he repeatedly referred to "murderers" and murderers "go free," according to the BBC. Over the years, the most obvious suspect in the murder was identified as the wife of a convicted terrorist from Spain. But after DNA evidence was finally matched to the wife of convicted terrorist Ramon Fernandez, the NYPD confirmed that the killing was indeed a terrorist act. Weber's daughter, just seven years old at
