The following is the message from the developer. Hello, my name is Hyper Hyper. After raising some crowdfunding on Kickstarter, I'm finally ready to release the sequel to the popular The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim. At this moment I'm trying to decide the best title for the game, so I'm asking for your opinions. Feel free to use the comments or personal message me and send me your suggestions. There are 4 options. 1) Die in Elden Ring. 2) Die in Skyrim. 3) Die in Heaven. 4) Die in Valhalla. The first option is obviously not realistic and might confuse the player with the numerous death messages around the game screen. The second option would imply that the campaign is somewhat smaller than the actual size. The third option wouldn't be fun, but I'm sure that the player would recognize it as "The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim - Valhalla Edition" and love the game. The fourth option would obviously be very confusing and might result in a player getting confused with between the mods and the modding community. So... what do you think? The following are the answers to the frequently asked questions that I've received in regards to the project. If you have any other questions, feel free to contact me. Q: Why the name "The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim - Heaven's Salvation"? A: Thanks for your support and your love for the game. After developing the game for a long time, I felt that there are still some things that need to be improved in the game. And I think that the name of the game will help the player understand what the game is about better. Q: Will the game be released in English and Japanese? A: I'm working on the localization right now. I'm trying to find someone that bff6bb2d33
