Drug interactions with theophylline. Theophylline is a basic, weakly acidic, phosphodiesterase inhibitor that can cause severe cardiac arrhythmias and is contraindicated in patients with bradyarrhythmias. The drug is generally considered to be safe and effective in the treatment of asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. It is well known that some commonly used drugs have clinically important interactions with theophylline, including propranolol, oral anticoagulants, and fluconazole. Theophylline has also been shown to have many pharmacokinetic interactions with other drugs, although most of these interactions have little clinical importance. This article reviews clinically important drug interactions with theophylline, including interactions 6d1f23a050
