VA 100 Hits Romantic Saxophone Mp3

the shirelles hits, like the frantic ones, really capture the bronx and show why the golden age of the borough still has so much life. with a carefree, whistle-your-way-through-the-50s style, the group had a lot of success in the early 60s, with this lovely sounding and laid-back pop hit being one of their greatest. a perfect way to do a feel-good song, this song made the group into huge stars. whether its the police swaggering with two passionate voices on the chorus, the driving guitar and saxophone on no. 2, or morrissey singing about fighting and being young, im really turned on, its as good as it gets. here are some links to some great performances: the beach boys may have taken the idea of the doo-wop song and came up with something more like this. a perfect rocknroll pop tune, it was the third hit from their summer days- and summer nights album and worked wonders for pete, who in those days of late 1962 didnt have the dynamite vocal chops of so many of his bandmates. at least seven cover versions of the supremes hit you keep me hangin' on have been recorded, and each is interesting, but this is the most successful. the foursome of the fab four capture the essence of the song, especially dont stop the presses famous spinning sound effects and jazzy percussion. all of which are expertly captured by the four beatles musicians. christopher l. wilmer the rhythm section are on fire on this song from the album zezinho revisited. you would never know it was the original brazilians joão gilberto, buddy morrow and fred sommer, not to mention the rest of the rhythm section who perform on the song. john taylor this was the first single by the bee gees, and the song would become one of their biggest hits. written by barry gibb, robin gibb, and maurice gibb, it was originally titled i could have been a dreamer. when maurice gibb took it to the bbc, it was rejected. the bee gees also recorded a much more uptempo version of the song, which was released in the us as dance to the music, and this version eventually became a hit for sergio mendes in 1969. when the single came out in 1969, it sold more than 4 million copies. but the song never had the same resonating power in years to come. thats partly due to the fact that it wasnt as good a single as the others in the series. yet, in a way, it was even better. it was more intimate, more personal. its unmistakable, instantly-recognizable melody, provided by the introspective and light-hearted arrangement of paul buckmasters, was a far cry from coltranes sophisticated, but still accessible, sound. the song was an inspiration to many other jazz musicians, whether they were sidemen world of new york citys diverse jazz scene. several generations of saxophone players have taken up the coltrane tribute, including his own son, eric, and pianist kenny barron. its also inspired singer/songwriters, from nick drake to jonathan richman. and now it inspires rock musicians as well. back to the biggest names in music of the 21st century: drake, taylor swift, beyonc, adele, justin bieber, rihanna, ed sheeran. they all have multiple unforgettable love songs to their credit, earning the artists some of their biggest and most-beloved hits. the form and content may have evolved since the days of the ronettes and the beach boys hell, since the days of boyz ii men and celine dion but it remains an essential and inextricable part of the
