Smith, 502 F.2d 481 (7th Cir. 1974), carefully laid out the requirements for a hearing under the fourth amendment: If the district court errs in foreclosing inquiry into this area, we must then determine whether the *979 error was prejudicial. In making this determination, we must be mindful of the fact that many cases involve strong and indeed persuasive factors for suppression, while others stand in sharp contrast. The relatively easy task of determining whether a hearing was required in a border search case is not the same as the task of determining whether a hearing is essential to the fairness of a given case. Id. at 486. Based on this discussion and on the considerations set forth in United States v. Van Leeuwen, supra, I find that the evidence against the defendants was obtained as a result of illegal searches in violation of the fourth amendment. The searches of the luggage were not incident to a lawful arrest and therefore these searches cannot be used as the justification for the arrest. See, e. g., United States v. Johnson, supra. 2. Legality of Arrest The defendants also attack the legality of their arrests. In making this argument, they rely on the Supreme Court's ruling in Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 88 S.Ct. 1868, 20 L.Ed.2d 889 (1968), which held that "where a police officer observes unusual conduct which leads him reasonably to conclude in light of his experience that criminal activity may be afoot and that the persons with whom he is dealing may be armed and presently dangerous, where in the course of investigating this behavior he identifies himself as a policeman and makes reasonable inquiries, and where nothing in the initial stages of the encounter serves to dispel his reasonable fear for his own or others' safety, he is entitled for the protection of himself and others in the area to conduct a carefully limited search of the outer clothing of such persons in an attempt to discover weapons which might be used to assault him." Id. at 30, 88 S.Ct. at 1884. "This principle of course does not entail a right on the part of the police to search the outer clothing of every citizen whom they stop and question," c6a93da74d
