Analysis of total cell-free (cfDNA) DNA in serum: potential application in clinical settings. Cell-free DNA (cfDNA) is released by apoptotic or necrotic tumor cells and is present in serum. cfDNA is involved in the regulation of inflammation, cellular senescence, and tumor development. Therefore, cfDNA could be a potential biomarker of various diseases. The use of cfDNA has been expanded in cancer screening, although its clinical significance and applicability in multiple clinical settings are still unknown. In this review, the possible applications of cfDNA in cancer diagnosis, prognosis, and treatment monitoring are discussed. Geoffrey Simpson (politician) Geoffrey Simpson (8 May 1921 – 23 June 2015) was an Australian politician who was a Country Party member of the Legislative Council of Western Australia from 1966 to 1973. Simpson was born in the North West town of Pinjarra to a storekeeper and later real estate agent, Walter Simpson. He attended state schools in North-West Perth before receiving a scholarship to attend the Monash College of Technology in Dandenong. He was employed as a millwright and later as an engineering draftsman, and was also a chairman of the State Savings Bank. He married Patricia Ellen Campbell in 1946, with whom he had two sons. Simpson died in Fremantle in June 2015, aged 94. Simpson first entered parliament at the 1966 election, winning a place on the Legislative Council in the North Province. He was defeated by the Liberal incumbent Ray McPharlin at the 1971 election, but re-entered parliament when McPharlin retired at
