No registration is required. * I recommend it highly, I love it! * It's very useful, very fast, and can be used even by people who know nothing about computers. If you love animations, then you are already a fan of the amazing animation software GIMP. However, GIMP is a bit difficult to use, as it requires a bit of time to learn and master. If you have a bit of time, then GIMP is actually a very useful program that many people love. On the other hand, for people who don't have the time, or who are searching for a simpler alternative, there is another very powerful and useful animation software. It is called GIFs of All Colors. This is NOT a commercial or a paid software program, there is no membership or subscription required. The only thing you have to pay is your time, and the only input you have to provide is the video or images that you want to create a GIF or a Video. To create an Animated GIF, you will only have to follow simple instructions. I do not encourage piracy, I only want people to download, use, and give feedback. This software will work properly for Windows and Mac OS computers, however, to make it

WebAnim is a GIF tool that enables you to turn your Web pages into animated GIF images that load and play within seconds in your Web browsers. It is a standalone tool that does not require any additional software to work. Simply add a Web page and a few images to your computer's hard disk, and click on the "Create GIF" button from the tool's toolbar. You will be prompted to select the desired images that appear sequentially in your Web page and the time interval between each of them. WebAnim Gif will then add the link to the animated GIF to your Web page using a high-quality PNG file format. The animated GIF will appear automatically in your browser, complete with a page that contains a banner with the link to your animated GIF. You can edit the GIF's metadata and add comments for your own reference. You can also download the animated GIF image to your computer and view it in a real time preview mode that offers the possibility to view the page in your browser and the animated GIF images within the tool. Key Features: - Create animated GIF images using Web pages and images - Add transition effects to the GIF images - Customize GIF metadata - Preview the GIF images online in real time - Decide whether to download the GIF image to the hard drive - Add animated GIF to Web pages - Configure animated GIF with comments and metadata - Preview animated GIF online in real time - Select the GIF image format - Set the number of GIF images, loops, and delay intervals - Update index of GIF images - Add a link to the animated GIF image - Customize the GIF image using markers - Export a selected part of the GIF image or the GIF image in a subset file format - Enter the URL to preview the GIF image online - Insert the link to your animated GIF to the page - Specify the GIF image size - Set the GIF image file format - Supports the following Web file types: jpg, jpeg, gif, and png For example, You can use the animated GIF to create the following banner: This animated GIF page will display a link to the page on the Web. The link to the animated GIF page can be edited in the HTML editor of your Web page and then the link to the animated GIF can be inserted into a Web page in many different ways: - Link within the page - Link external to the page - Link relative to the page - Link

What's New in the WebAnim Gif?

Java Applet Windows, Mac OSX, or Linux Java Development Kit (JDK) Free This software gets a poor rating on ratings pages for many reasons. One is that it uses up twice as much memory as its competitors. I run all my software in Windows 7, I use 1GB of RAM; adding a third 1GB software is just outrageous. Using a quarter of my available memory is a huge problem and I don't see anything in the software to help alleviate it. The software also uses a larger CPU than the competition. I spent one of those nights at the end of the week and ran the software for about four hours. By the time I started using it was about 8AM and it took only minutes for the program to start taxing my CPU like crazy. The last time that happened was in Windows XP, before the memory got upgraded in XP, and it was a very slow process because it was taking the old Java 1.6. The problem was basically fixed in Windows 7 because of the dual core processor technology, but despite that using about 40% of the processor was still bad. The other big problem with the software is that it is not as versatile as its competition. The software has pre-defined transition functions like you see in other competing software. If your transition function is different, you can't select it in the software. Another thing that I didn't like about the software was the lack of image processing abilities. Some of the other competing software let you resize images and turn them on and off. This software does not. It seems that it was designed to be a pure moving image software, while most of the other competing software is a bit more versatile and not just the moving image software. The software even forces you to make the looping infinitely, which is something that you don't have to do when using other software. Also, I cannot even start using the software unless I agree to the following: Please be advised that by using this software you agree to our terms and conditions, available at www.webanimgif.com If you do agree, you can go to the product page and download the software. If you don't agree you will not be able to download the software. This software is also rather expensive at $75, which is the standard amount that this software costs, with no discount at all for multiple installations. 4 likes This software gets a poor rating on ratings pages for many reasons
