Macros are an efficient and convenient way of controlling your PC via simple keyboard shortcuts. Once you understand them, you will be able to quickly switch between tools, open windows, and close them with a single press of the CTRL key. By default, a computer is set to have a Windows hotkey set for each task it performs. For example, pressing CTRL+Shift+C opens the Windows Explorer window, while CTRL+Shift+N opens the Network and Sharing Center window. However, the hotkey combination is not always the most comfortable and intuitive. There are many macros software applications available in the market, but the most convenient and effective applications are the ones that work with the built-in system keys, such as Windows. With KeyMACRO, you can easily create and customize new macros to perform specific functions on your computer. With the help of KeyMACRO, you can launch a web browser, open file explorer, launch a new program, open a web site, etc. It is highly possible that you already have a number of macros that you would like to use, but have no idea on where they are stored and what they do.
