Thank you to everyone who has supported this project, be it financially or with your time and talent. Stay tuned for more updates! Download the game here: Hello! I released a part 1 today that I'd hoped you'd enjoy. A few notes: 1: As always, I am never sure if I'm going to release something, so the future is hard to predict. 2: I am making it very clear at the end that this game has been made by just me. 3: There are many things left to do, including bonus maps, a day/night cycle, and a combat system I've been tinkering with. 4: The story is rather over the top, and adds some sort of story for the player to grasp. Thanks for your time, and feel free to comment here with any feedback! Mon Jul 8 13:32:34 EEST 2016 This game is based on the "Toxic Factory" comic, created by W.Ito. It will be released with Kyohei Tanaka's "Toxic Fist", both games will be released this November. I'm very happy to have Kyohei as a creator for one of my games. I hope you'll enjoy this one! I also included a Roadmap, which includes some stories I've been working on and other interesting info! The game can be downloaded here: Download links on this Google Drive are just for the story! Hello, I recently made a new release of this game (It's version 5.0). What's new in Wreckdigger:

New Yankee in Santa's Service is an American television Christmas special that aired on CBS on December 2, 1970. It was a 90-minute television program, and starred Jack Kemp as Santa Claus (not the singer of the same name). The special was the first of a two-part December 2 telecast, and was broadcast a week after the episode "Old Father Time" of the 1971 comedy-drama series, The Odd Couple. It was filmed in late November and early December of 1970, and originally aired in prime time in first-run syndication on CBS on December 2, 1970, a Wednesday. The program was about a young man trying to earn a job at the North Pole. The first half of the telecast was about him obtaining the job, while the second half was about him fulfilling his duties as Santa's helper. Jack Kemp had gained popularity and stardom while serving in Congress as the United States Secretary of the Labor Department in the Johnson Administration, and following that he became a television actor and was a regular on two television series, General Electric Theater and Kraft Television Theatre. The special received generally favorable reviews, and Jack Kemp did the show's narration and performed the title song composed by Burt Bacharach. The album given away to viewers was called New Yankee in Santa's Service, featuring the title song and other songs composed by Burt Bacharach and Hal David. The storyline A New England railroad worker, dissatisfied with his station life, lives a life of risk and adventure among the Santa's helpers (in the North Pole). During his evening after work, he dreams about his father, who invites him to join his job at the North Pole. It was a typical situation for light comedy. The hero wants to work at the North Pole, to show him willing and grateful for his father and his time in family. He has a number of obstacles to overcome, such as falling health in the salesgirl. Plot The action of this special takes place in a department store whose name has been changed to "Waldosta's Department Store" to disguise its identity. With his friend and co-worker "Danny" he works at the "clothes counter" and dreaming that he came finally his parent's dream. (It's possible that it's the film industry, as Waldosta's Department Store seems to be a screenwriter and producer's film studio in a dark location or even
