EA SPORTS FIFA 22's player progression and inclusion of real-world clubs are driven by a new underlying physics engine called Pro-Direct (Pro of Direct) aimed at simulating the player's motion and reaction to the game's physics on the pitch, incorporating new data sets and input from pro players on how to better represent the "feel" of football. New Engine Developed with the same engine used for FUT 17, the Pro-Direct engine has been redesigned to provide more realistic collisions and a more responsive feel. New animations have also been implemented to add more fluidity and responsiveness to the ball and player. New Referee Engine FIFA 22 introduces a new animation system to increase the sense of "mass" and authenticity for players in possession of the ball. A new camera system as well as new logic for animation is utilized to provide a more authentic experience for all users, including those of all skill levels. New Pitch Engine The new pitch engine incorporates new physics for shape recognition and greater stability by now including dynamic surface deformation. The ball will now adjust more intuitively to the surface of the pitch. New Skill Post Processing The passing player model has been updated, resulting in more authentic visuals for new and veteran players. New Behaviour New AI controlled teammates will now play more intelligently and in turn make smarter decisions, making the game more immersive and giving fans an easier time identifying the most influential player on the pitch. Teams and Players The greatest partnerships in the game's history have been brought together by EA SPORTS FIFA 22, with new teams including Juventus and Olympiakos; Barcelona and Paris Saint Germain; Chelsea and Nürnberg; Manchester City and West Ham, and Real Madrid and Celta Vigo. New Characteristics and Features New passes New Ultimate Team Players can collect and bring back to their squad the most iconic players of all time such as Pelé, Maradona, Messi, Ronaldo and more. New Modes New Contracts Buy, sell and give players more freedom with a new contract system that allows you to purchase and sell players from around the globe. Sell your underperforming players or your star players to gain the transfer credits to bring in the world-class, superstars. New Roles New Tools Playmaker, creator and quarterback are the roles
