What's new in Fifa 22:

- Commentators Access the stories of four commentating legends of World Cup in Brazil. Now called the "V-Men"; each offering their unique perspective on the game alongside the usual BBC team and NBCSN commentary team.
- Player Career FIFA 18's and FIFA 19's Player Career have been blended and recreated in FIFA 22 to be faster and more dynamic. With a new set of player attributes to use in attacks and tackles, take advantage of flight boosts that allow for strong dribbling, or choose new types of shots to unleash on the opposition. Or manage your squad, time your purchases around your tactics and use successful transfers to give your club the best chance of success.
- Ozil-Sanchez Player Impact System The software system responsible for Pro Clubs is back in FIFA 22, enabling us to better respond to agents' movements, and react to the system through new tactics and gameplay. Players can play with greater confidence, knowing where they need to be in the final third for the best possible outcomes.
- Balance Changes
- Redefine skill moves New skills moves, including new dribbling moves, new types of free kicks, and new headers, will be included into the Skill Moves panel, providing a more varied and flexible skills selection for your player.
- New Ambitious Defensive AI We've reworked the overall defensive AI so more teams will take on the game and perform tricks like higher duels, pressuring an attack in more numbers, and more often blocking off passing lanes to open up opportunities down the line.
- New Game Play You'll experience a tactical shift from FIFA 19, with a better balance between goalkeeper and defender, more aggressiveness in physical play, and more presence in transition.
- Pressed Teams If a team is in possession, in danger of losing the ball to a pressing side, they'll now push up and drop to close down space in behind the opposition's defence.
- Team Styles More of an emphasis on playing styles and tactics and less focus on RBs will be in FIFA 22 as well.
- Player Balance We've widened the gap in player level from last year's game, which ensures that more players will have

System Requirements:

To minimize the number of devices required, there are two functions to consider. These functions can be summarized as: 1) Are we able to determine and/or affect the measured current? 2) Do we want to analyze the data recorded in the device? If we only measure the current in the device, then we must detect and manipulate the device, because the device is a passive element in this case. If we simply record the data, then we have more options for differentiating the measured data with that of the device's behavior. 1
