Donald Trump compared Apple to the DOJ in remarks delivered to immigration activists at his campaign event Friday night. "You know, at Apple, they make a lot of money, and you know why? They're smarter than you are," Trump told the crowd. "They don't make a lot of money, they don't. They make a lot of money. In fact, you come to somebody and say, 'I don't know how to do this,' they'd have you by the throat in two seconds." Trump's attacks on Apple were quickly ridiculed on social media. @realDonaldTrump more advice for Apple: Stop making such a great phone. With all due respect, you don't have to take advice from a sleazebag Presidential candidate. — dipshit (@tbsp) August 23, 2016

Every gambler wants a different casino experience! Find a balance and make your players happy. Who said gambling has to be dull? If your player types are not happy, no one wins.For you it means having more guests in your casino. For your casino it means having a better return on your invested capital. And both you and your casino gain more from having happy guests.The location of your casino dictates the type of guests you get. This is where you have to develop a strategy that suits you casino type.Choose and analyze your guests needs! Send them home with a positive thought. Explore their gamblers routine and be aware when they are motivated to gamble!Q: Dealing with arguments I am having a problem with my arguments. The program deals with arrays and one of them needs to be called either a odd or even array depending on the argument. If the argument is 'O', the function should call the odd array. If the argument is 'E', the function should call the even array. And if the argument is none (or no value), the program should call the default array. But the problem is, when I call the function, it says that "TypeError: not all arguments converted during string formatting" # odd array def odd_arr(arr1): if arr1 == 'O': for i in range(len(arr1)): print(arr1[i]) # even array def even_arr(arr2): if arr2 == 'E': for i in range(len(arr2)): print(arr2[i]) # default array def defarr(arr3): if arr3 == 'N': for i in range(len(arr3)): print(arr3[i]) odd_arr('heeffeeso') I'm trying to make the array either odd or even depending on the argument, but when I call it, it doesn't work. I don't know why. A: if arr1 == 'O': will never be true if arr1
