I have an issue I can't sort out. I have a small port on my left side that is being blocked as I have a large projector (10 to 12 inches) on that side as well as a 32 inch monitor on the right hand side as well. I tried to put the projector in the opposite corner which wasn't very successful and tried to only use the projector at night when I was in bed. The problem is that the image from the projector is still cut off and although there is a large blank area that I would prefer to see with the projector off or the windows in the back on the 32 inch. I could put a blue screen but that defeats the purpose. My question is, is there a way to adjust the position of the projector or is that the wrong track to go down? A: In the OP's comment to my answer it says this: For the most part I'm just trying to eliminate reflections. I would say that for the most part I would say you can eliminate reflections very easily and that is by just not illuminating from straight on but rather in either a diagonal or perpendicular view to the projector. By doing this you will still be able to get the full screen size of the projector but the image will not be a reflection but the image of the projector itself. You could also try just moving away as much as possible from the mirror effect. Depending on the size of your room you could put the projector somewhere where it would only cut a small part of the room, it could make a difference if you have a window behind it. Jürgen Klopp has challenged Liverpool to respond to their Champions League elimination at the hands of Sevilla on the road to Euro 2016. The Reds were outclassed 4-0 in the return leg of their last-16 tie at the Mestalla, where Aleksandar Kolarov struck a brace and goalkeeper Willy Caballero proved his mettle with several fine saves. Klopp saw his side beaten on aggregate and now must wait until after Euro 2016 to gauge the state of the squads that represent Germany and Spain in France. The Liverpool manager hopes a second straight Champions League exit will galvanise the Reds into achieving their ultimate objective this season. He told Liverpoolfc.com: "I always say we are there one year early. You need to win the first European final [to be an Olympic champion]. "We have 050606a2c7
