This invention relates generally to the field of vehicle monitoring systems. More particularly, this invention relates to a vehicle monitoring system that may monitor several variables simultaneously. Vehicle monitoring systems exist to monitor parameters of vehicles. Some systems exist to monitor and analyze conditions of vehicles, such as driving style, driving performance, and driving habits. The collected data may be analyzed to determine driving habits of vehicle drivers and to reduce fuel consumption and emissions of vehicles. Such systems may utilize a plurality of sensors placed on vehicles to monitor the vehicle's parameters and provide feedback to the driver of the vehicle. Although the sensors provide for substantial information to be gathered and analyzed, the number of sensors to be placed on vehicles is limited by cost. Some sensors may be placed on the outer skin of the vehicle, such as on door panels and windows
