New to RAC and I'd like to be able to perform an isoserial and set the port to use. For my end use, I need a Java app running on Linux. When I manually input the serial number, I only get "RAC is invalid". What I am trying to do is avoid having to login to RAC over the web. It just gets to there because there's no inbound traffic to RAC. Please help. A: In RAC3.3.1 have you looked at the firewall configuration? By default, RAC has the Remote Administrator Control (RAC) service bound to port 9090. If you are having trouble connecting, check your firewall configuration on your firewall and make sure that port 9090 is open. The URL to access RAC admin console will be Solyndra may be going bankrupt, but the auto bailout-fueled consumption of debt by the U.S. government isn't. In fact, the U.S. government is sitting on $1.8 trillion in bailout-fueled debt. And that's not sustainable.

Not at all. In 2010, President Obama made his own decision to bailout American car and auto industry, however, not through a direct investment in the industry as with the financial industry bailout, but through the tax payer funded, Buy American Act, which infuses the federal government with the purchasing power of the public. By July, just a year later, the government owned $40.3 billion worth of General Motors shares, worth about $1.9 billion at current share value. General Motors is effectively a new state-owned enterprise (SOE), and General Motors is now the largest publicly traded SOE in the United States. Of course, what little value that the state-owned G.M. has been trading at is largely inflated because of a quantitative easing (QE) printing press from the Federal Reserve. Last week, the last 16,441,688,760 G.M. shares were dumped onto the market, but it was all done in one fell swoop (in an attempt, one can guess, to trick the market into thinking that demand for the stock is high), as the government's role was to dilute its share ownership and thus its value rather
