Pseudo 8-bit platformer Taking a tad of inspiration from modern media, iaidoka_interlude looks to deliver a neo-noir, neo-samurai action platformer. An artistic and chiptune-meets-rough-samurai aesthetic has been built around a pixel art style world (think 1990s-era noir-thriller movies like Out of Sight, film-noir, etc.) As the player, you are given a chance to experience a neo-samurai journey through a city infested with long-forgotten monstrosities lurking in the shadows, a city infested with bloodthirsty and cunning rivals. Inspired by classic action games and slow-paced noir-thrillers, you must learn to outmaneuver death. In an era where the "super hero" is not a very popular concept, there is a chance for you to witness a time when they were the most fearsome. This game was made under the name "Video Graffiti". This game was released on Steam on April 3, 2016. 1st Anniversary | Muze of Games - 2012 Winter Game Jam Winner 1st Anniversary | Muze of Games - 2012 Winter Game Jam Winner This is a Game Jam video I made during the 2012 Winter Game Jam in Boston. The game was one of the final entries for the game jam. Muze of Games: 1:54 Wii-exclusivity Wii-exclusivity Wii-exclusivity Exclusive to Wii, this puzzle platform game has players travelling across 10 unique worlds, full of original characters, challenging puzzles and fantastical enemies. Gameworlds hand-crafted from papercraft and pixel art seamlessly blend the player's action-orientated platforming adventure with intricately detailed hand-painted backgrounds, allowing those with an artistic eye to really see what this fine piece of gaming hardware is capable of. With multiple play styles and difficulty levels, players can embark upon challenges based on their skill, ability, and time-commitment. Bahrain International Circuit, also known as the Sakhir International Circuit, is an ultra-modern track that hosts some of the biggest motorsport competitions. It is known for the series of short straights and slow bends that make up its total length of 5.412km, which put the emphasis on precision when entering the bends and changes of pace rather than pure speed. That's about all I can say about this part of the world; because I didn't have the chance to visit it myself, I can only base my opinion on the impressions I got from what I've seen from the movies and the videos I've watched and read online. So, what can you expect about the Bahrain International Circuit? 1. A big variety of scenery: The first thing you'll notice about the Bahrain International Circuit is the buildings. In the whole expanse of the circuit there are three grandstands and seven hotels and sports centres, but the most eye-catching feature of the circuit is probably its track. The track is the birthplace of the race series and was built in 1980. It is the first track of the kind in the region and even if it was for more than 30 years old, its shape and speed still stay very close to its track record – one of the fastest tracks in the world, with an average speed of 244 kph. In 2013, they completed construction of the public road section that will be used to transport the cars for the second stage of the Bahrain Formula One Team Championship, that means the circuit can be used by cars from all over the world. 2. Street Races: The race that put the Bahrain International Circuit on the map was the 1992 Barcelona Street Race. It was a competition between street racing teams and teams from Formula 1. The race was the only in history that gained sponsorship. Because of this, it is known as The Battle of the Seas. In 1993, it was the first race of the Formula 3 Challenge. It was decided by the officials of the international association of motor racing as the most "interesting" race in the world. 3. Evo (the only tour) BahaExpo is the brand of BMW Motorsport, which is responsible for all the activities in conjunction with the Bahrain International Circuit. When visiting the circuit, you'll get to enjoy different events in which

Previews The ISS was widely described as the greatest achievement for mankind's ability to travel beyond earth's atmosphere. Today, the International Space Station (ISS) carries six individuals, a total crew size that was already increasing towards the future of seven in late 2013. Robotic spacecraft to assemble, inspect, and repair the ISS are pushing the capabilities of flight controllers here on Earth, allowing the ISS to continue to operate for decades and possibly continue indefinitely. With the ISS available and operating on a regular basis, the ISS has been continuously visible to many millions of people since Sputnik I was launched in the early sixties. Together, this puts the ISS among humanity's only space exploration artifacts, standing in a category of its own. I recently had a chance to be one of the first people on the internet to see the ISS in person, and I was amazed at the breathtaking images I was able to see remotely of an over 1000 kilometer long space station circling the Earth. Oculus introduced several apps for entertainment for the VR community at the 2016 International CES, including the latest in a series of select space-themed experiences. I was fortunate enough to join up with Oculus VR for some hands-on time with the latest Oculus Visitor, a visit to the ISS, and a new preview of the Oculus Touch VR controllers. These experiences will be available for download with later releases of the Oculus SDK. Tour of the ISS My tour of the ISS began with a short warm-up briefing from the crew, what to expect, and that there would be a few safety briefings coming up so keep your seat belt on. After a short wait we were soon transferred by car to the Astronauts' Lounge, where we were treated to the typical first-world amenities of green plants, coffee, and snacks. The ISS is a large, six-story shell with a maximum height of nearly 350 feet. Once inside, it appeared just as you would see it on TV or feel it in an airplane. When we were inside, the video camera aboard the ISS showed us passing by the American section, the Russian section, life support areas, and the center module. The ISS has a world of history and amazing technology in it. For me, once the crew had checked us in and the space suits had been de-pressurized, the first thing that struck me was how deep the acoustics were inside the ISS. The acoustics in the enfrentamento em ocupação A 10ª Vara do Trabalho do Rio de Janeiro julgou o ex-goleiro do Fluminense Fábio Magrão sem elementos que "prejudicassem" o clube nesta terça-feira (13). O caso saiu da primeira audiência do processo administrativo cautelar mantido pelo advogado do atleta, Ronaldo Moreira Barbosa, que já informou que fará recurso no ano que vem. Mas o advogado não constatou qualquer ato de Fábio Magrão que possa afetar o clube. Em um dos contraditórios, o processo aponta ainda que o atleta deveria ter sido destituído do banco,
