Notepad-7 is a word processing tool that intends to replace the default 'Notepad' application available through Windows. It can be easily installed and configured, even by first-time users. The interface of the program is familiar and easy to work with. So, you can use some basic functions, such as cut, copy and paste. But you can also change the font name, size and emphasis, insert the current date and time, as well as use a search and replace tool. Additionally, you can enable word wrapping and display the status bar, undo your actions, as well as encrypt your document by assigning a password to it. In the status bar you can check out the length, number of lines, current line and column, along with the current selection position. The simple-to-use software application needs a moderate amount of CPU and system memory, in order to work properly. It has a good response time but doesn't include a help file. Notepad-7 did not cause us any issues throughout our testing, such as freezing, crashing or popping up errors. On the downside, the utility comes with limited features. Aside from the up-to-date interface and encryption method, Notepad-7 does not really offer something extra, compared to Windows' 'Notepad'. Nevertheless, novices may easily get around this app's features, thanks to its familiar layout and overall simplicity.

West Midlands Ambulance Service was called to Loxley Road in Thames Ditton at around 12:45am on May 7 2017, with two ambulance crews from Hillingdon, and an air ambulance and a St John's Ambulance, also arriving. The woman who raised the alarm was sitting on her front garden wall at her own home, when she saw her neighbour drive into the sea wall. She then called police, who arrested her neighbour. (Image: Twitter/Wests Midlands Ambulance Service) Prosecutor Dan Jones said an officer approached the van and saw a woman outside the vehicle, which was still running. He saw a large boot, which smelled strongly of alcohol, and suspected the van was being driven by someone under the influence of alcohol. The officer found a bottle of brandy in the boot which did not contain any fluid. The officer had to open the boot because he could smell the alcohol coming from inside the vehicle, which the officer described as coming from the vicinity of the passenger's legs. In addition to the bottle of brandy, the officer found empty bottles of wine, which the officer said was a 'highly unusual' amount for a single person to keep in their vehicle. (Image: Google) Mr Jones told Thames Magistrates' Court that a man, who was in the road, then reported that the woman had earlier told him that she wanted to kill herself. The officer spoke with the woman, who said she had taken several large amounts of alcohol and had become confused. She said she had wanted to take a drug but not killed herself. She then fell over while trying to get into the car, causing the van to drive into the sea wall. The woman then became aggressive, started yelling at the officer and telling him to find out who she was as it
