Free HD barsaat kiÂ .According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, in 2009 60.2 percent of the people working in the U.S. were employed in the private sector. The remaining 39.8 percent of employed persons in the U.S. were employed in the public sector. Among the public employees are teachers (11.5 percent), social workers (4.4 percent), administrators (3.3 percent), and police officers (2.9 percent). Depending on the job assignment, these groups may be collectively responsible for millions of dollars in non-medical costs. According to Dr. Caroline Crane of University at Buffalo in New York, a school nurse is exposed to blood, needle sticks and potentially other illnesses. The nurse must respond to or report any concerns immediately to school officials. School nurses administer immunizations and laboratory tests. They also respond to health problems of students and schools' staff. In addition to the risk of blood exposure, nurses may experience needle sticks, lacerations, cuts, bites, and other traumatic injuries. These injuries could expose school nurses to blood-borne pathogens such as HIV, hepatitis B and C, and various strains of tuberculosis. [WANT TO DOWNLOAD THIS ARTICLE IN PAPER VERSION? She may be required to respond to a wide range of medical, behavioral, and psychological situations. Sometimes she is called upon to intervene in stressful crises or to help manage a relationship. Surprisingly, however, many school nurses receive little guidance in dealing with these crises and relationships, especially at an interpersonal level. One school nurse who works in an urban public school reports that people feel uncomfortable asking her advice about relationships. This is particularly true when they are worried about breaking up with a boyfriend or girlfriend. In addition, school nurses are not trained to provide advice or counseling on a wide range of personal and family issues that arise. One school nurse was expected to know the symptoms of drug abuse. The nurse and her staff did not receive any training in the management of substance abuse, and they did not know how to respond to an intervention on substance abuse. The nurse must
