Microsoft offers a free tool called osk.exe that lets you use a keyboard on the screen, just like what you see on a .22 year old Nikola Kalinic, the current leading scorer in the Croatian national league A, scored 1 of his 7 goals for Dinamo Zagreb against Rijeka last week with a header that was tipped onto the bar by a defender from his own goal line before pinballing off the pitch. During his career Kalinic has played in Germany for Borussia Monchengladbach, Porto, Wolfsburg, Hamburg and Hertha before returning to his native country in the summer of 2016 after a decent two-year spell at MOL Vidi FC. To give you a sense of just how good he is you can take a look at his goal assist tally in the Croatian League: Yes he's 23. Yes he's a bit overweight and yes he's not physical at all. But, his long passing, right-footed crosses and flicks, his first-time shots and eye for a tight angle are so reminiscent of the great strikers of the past that it's easy to see why he's caught the eye of so many clubs since returning to Dinamo Zagreb after a two-year spell in Hungary with Debrecen. His form and confidence is good at the moment, but one has to wonder how he'll handle the added pressure of being Croatia's top scorer. A national treasure A few summers ago, we argued over who had the greatest strike force in world football, a discussion that was centred around goalscoring abilities rather than who might score the most. But considering the likes of Lionel Messi, Harry Kane and Ronaldo (who recently set the world goal scoring record) all have been consistently top-scoring in major competitions for a number of years, there are very few other big-name players that can match the raw power of scoring, the element of goal scoring that has propelled them to the top of their game. And it's the element of goal scoring that we could argue Nikola Kalinic possesses in spades. Given a chance to play at some of the most famous clubs in the world, Kalinic would be in the top-scoring charts for the top teams in the Champions League, Bundesliga, La Liga, Serie A and the MLS (he's represented Croatia internationally at
