A Rails developer can never be too prepared! A startup environment is a developer's ultimate playground: Installing Ruby, Rails, and other tools, and then simply coding away. But no more onerous setup process: just one command, and you've got a Ruby framework running in a fraction of the time. Rails Installer includes all the common tools you need to get started with Rails. It is supported on windows and MAC OS X. First, it installs, configures and tests Ruby for you. Then, you have all the tools you need to get running: · Rails 4 · Ruby 1.9.3 · Git · SQLite and PostgreSQL support · Sqlite and MySQL database drivers · DevKit to install all the tools Ruby needs to compile. Got any questions? No worries, you can send us an email at support@mkengy.info. What's New In?

• Simple and fast • Downloads and installs everything • Easy to use • In one place • Automatic updates • Gives you Rails 4 for free Git clone the repo and open Terminal. To start, let's install all the Ruby gems we need: $ sudo gem install sqlite3 $ sudo gem install sqlite3-dev $ sudo gem install tinytds $ sudo gem install sql-server-jdbc $ sudo gem install tinytds $ gem install bundler To verify that our project path has been set, run gem env Setting up Ruby to use sqlite3. (Gem::Hate_bundler). 1 gem is installed. Installing sqlite3-dev (2.1.0.dev.0)... Building native extensions. This could take a while... Successfully installed sqlite3-dev-2.1.0.dev.0 1 gem installed. $ bundle update --system Looking good! Now let's download the entire code. You can easily do it by running: $ cd ~/railsinstaller $ git clone $ cd railsinstaller/railsinstaller $ bundle Bundle has been refreshed! $ git status On branch master Your branch and 'origin/master' have diverged, and have 43 and 42 different commits each, respectively. (See git-diff's output for the exact commits that differ.) Untracked files:

(use "git add…" to include in what will be committed) Where do we go from here? We're going to use this code as a basis and add what we need. Git is awesome like that. Create a new file with the following text: $ vim hi.rb We use RoRInstaller to create a new Rails 4 app called "super cool". $ railsinstaller new supercool New Rails 4 app'supercool' created. $ rails install 3.2.13 $ cd supercool Creating development environment at /home/david/railsinstaller/supercool/dev/.bundle/config Installing required gems: sass-rails 4.0.1 s
