Roblox has announced a new game mode called 'Minigames' which will allow users to unlock new content through in-game purchases. The 'Minigames' game mode will allow players to buy coins by spending real money. These coins can then be used to activate a minigame which unlocks the corresponding in-game content. Roblox has claimed that the new Minigames mode will be free from microtransactions and will not affect the company's business model or business practices. According to a developer interview, the 'Minigames' game mode was approved by Roblox's board of directors in December 2018. The mobile game Overwatch has been making headlines in the past few years for successfully combining two entirely different types of games: Shooter games and Role-Playing games (RPG). Just like other popular Action-RPGs, Overwatch is a game where players take on the role of a character that they control throughout the game. The main difference is that Overwatch, just like League of Legends, is an FPS game where the emphasis is on individual abilities rather than team tactics. The game does not have an in-game currency and is free to play, with optional in-app purchases that are accessible from the menu screen. Since its initial release in 2017, Overwatch has grown to become one of the most successful mobile FPS games in existence with over 160 million monthly active users, making the game a good example for other developers who wish to recreate the Overwatch experience.
